**e-Dementia e-learning programme updated with new sessions****

Health Education England e-Learning for Healthcare (HEE e-LfH) has been working with the University of Bradford to review, add new content and update sessions within the e-Dementia e-learning Programme.

The programme about dementia care has been designed to enhance the training and education of the health and care workforce. It focuses on the essential knowledge and skills needed to support and enable people living with dementia and their family carers to live as well as possible, wherever they live.

e-Dementia will also be of interest to those responsible for training and educating the health and care workforce. It can be used in a variety of ways including as part of induction; to structure reflective practice with individual staff and teams; for self-paced learning; and to revisit as a form of refresher training.

As part of the e-Dementia update, 14 new sessions have been added and 12 sessions have been retired from the programme.

New sessions added:

Module 1	Dementia awareness Person-centred dementia care
Module 2	Dementia identification, assessment and diagnosis Dementia risk reduction and prevention Communication, interaction and behaviour in dementia care Health and wellbeing in dementia care Pharmacological interventions in dementia care Living well with dementia and promoting independence Families and carers as partners in dementia care Equality, diversity and inclusion in dementia care Law, ethics and safeguarding in dementia care End of life dementia care Research and evidence-based practice in dementia care Leadership in transforming dementia care

For more information about the e-Dementia programme and for details of how to access please visit: <https://www.e-lfh.org.uk/programmes/dementia/>

The e-learning is also available via the e-LfH Hub, the Electronic Staff Record (ESR) and via AICC links.

**Place of Birth e-learning programme now live****

Health Education England e-Learning for Healthcare has worked with Birmingham Women's and Children's NHS Foundation Trust, the University of Birmingham, the National Institute of Healthcare Research (NIHR) and the Royal College of Midwives, to develop an e-learning programme that focuses on the different place of birth options for healthy, pregnant women who are at low risk of complications.

The programme consists of two e-learning sessions to support discussions with healthy, low-risk women about the safety, intervention and transfer rates for the different options for place of birth.

'Discussing Place of Birth Options with Healthy Low-risk Women', and 'Becoming a Place of Birth Lead' are e-learning sessions developed by midwives, for midwives, to support women in their birth place decisions. They are also suitable for others working with pregnant women, such as obstetricians, midwifery support workers and GPs.

The first session aims to ensure that midwives (and other professionals) have the essential knowledge about safety, intervention and transfer rates for different birth place options.

The second session is for midwives who have completed the first session and agreed with their manager to become 'Place of Birth leads' in their team, to support their colleagues in improving their place of birth discussions with women.

All the supporting materials for this programme have been written by subject specialists and experts in this field. The e-learning programme is available on the e-LfH Hub, the Electronic Staff Record (ESR) and via AICC links.

For more information about the e-learning programme visit: <https://www.e-lfh.org.uk/programmes/place-of-birth/>.
